

SCHOOL BONDS BRING HIGH PREMIUM

ISSUE OF RAVENSWOOD DISTRICT SOLD BY SUPERVISORS; BOARD HEARS REPORT ON PROGRESS OF COUNTY HOSPITAL WORK.

Monday's meeting of the board of supervisors saw the selling of the recent $28,999 bond issue of the Ravenswood school district. E. H. Rollins & Sons were the successful bidders, the price being a premium of $1020, plus face value and accrued interest. There were three bidders. The money will be used for a new school building and alterations on the present structure.

Because of the protest of L. C. Vanier and forty-eight other residents and taxpayers of Belmont, the board denied the petition of Dr. George E. Darrow for a permit to open a hospital on Ralston avenue in Belmont.

State orphan aid was granted to two applicants on recommendation of the County Social Service Commission, and the statement of the commission's expenditures for the month of April, as submitted by Miss Florence Boggs, executive secretary, was approved.

A petition from Ray L. Burket and other property owners of Lomita Park, requesting that repairs be made to a culvert, was referred to Supervisor Thomas Hickey.

Architect W. H. Toepke addressed the board regarding the progress being made on the Community Hospital, and asked that Contractor Barrett present a report. Barrett stated that he thought the work was progressing satisfactorily and that he had the assurance of the Pacific Portland Cement Company that sufficient material would be furnished to finish the building. He also said that the entire second floor would be white coated by July 1st.

The San Bruno Taxpayers' Defense Association, in a communication, protested against the high taxes assessed against their property, and the clerk was instructed to inform its members that the supervisors have nothing to do with assessments, the matter being in the hands of County Assessor D. P. Flynn.

Supervisor Francis informed the board that H. E. Herbert, a truck driver of Menlo Park, who was killed recently in an accident, had shortly before his death paid a fine of $50 assessed against him by Judge Pitcher of Halfmoon Bay, and that as his widow had been left in straitened circumstances, many of her neighbors were urging the return of the fine. The county clerk was instructed to inform Judge Pitcher the supervisors would approve the return of the money.

Supervisor Francis brought before the board the project to utilize the right of way of the former Ocean Shore railroad for a road, and the board determined to inspect the strip of land in the near future, accompanied by the district attorney and county surveyor.

The board adjourned to Monday, June 26th.

THREE AND THREE-QUARTER PER CENT BONDS ONLY CALLED

The recent announcement that certain war-time government bonds were to be redeemed by the government has led to much misunderstanding, and many persons are presenting Liberty bonds for redemption that are not of the right issue. It is the bond issue that draws 3 3/4 per cent only that should be presented. The bonds of 4% or 4 1/2 per cent, etc., should not be presented at this time.

LOCAL LODGE OF MOOSE TO PLAY WHIST AND DANCE

South City Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, is planning a progressive whist party and dance for the evening of June 27th. The affair will be given at Fraternal Hall and a capacity crowd is expected. The price of the score cards includes refreshments and a number of valuable prizes will be given away during the evening.

CITY TRUSTEES HOLD BUSINESS SESSION

Pass Ordinance Dividing City Into Zones and Advise for Bids for Paving in Peck's Lots.

The county of San Mateo intends to enforce the edict that recently went out from the supervisors' meeting, viz., that fines collected for violation of traffic laws in incorporated towns of the county must be turned into the county treasury. A letter was received at Monday evening's meeting of the city trustees saying that this order would be enforced. It is supposed the letter came from the board of supervisors, but as no name was signed to it the matter is in some doubt. At any rate this city has no intention to gobble this money due the county, so the letter was merely filed.

Joseph Reichel, proprietor of the Golden Eagle Hotel, was on hand to ask that when electroliners are installed on this city's streets the lighting district be extended to take in his hotel. Mr. Reichel had not understood, however, that the abutting property owners will pay for these lights. This was explained to him, and the matter ended.

City Clerk Daniel McSweeney was instructed to write the South San Francisco Land and Improvement Company and ask that the sidewalk on the property between Acacia and Eucalyptus avenues on Grand and between Grand and Miller avenues on Orange be cleared of earth washed down this winter.

Resolution No. 46, calling for bids for the work of paving in Peck's Lots and the laying of lateral sewer lines on certain streets, was passed to print. The bids will be opened at the meeting to be held Monday evening, July 10th.

Ordinance 117, dividing South San Francisco into residence, business and industrial zones, was passed and will be found published in full in another column of today's Enterprise. For an exact description of the boundaries of the different zones readers should refer to the ordinance. This is a very important ordinance, as any person expecting to locate a new business house or manufacturing plant in this city will be limited to the district where such places are allowed.

After the passage of several bills against the city treasury the trustees adjourned to meet again next Monday evening.

LEGION BALL TEAM TAKES CLOSE GAME FROM REDWOOD

The Bernard McCaffrey Post No. 85, American Legion, baseball team went to Redwood City last Sunday and handed a team there the short end in a very exciting game.

The game was a seesaw all the way. The Legion led off in the second with one score, but Redwood did them one better. The locals scored three in the fourth and Redwood came back with four in the fifth. Not pleased with things, the home-town gang came through with three in the sixth and maintained a lead enough to take the game.

Kouns pitched a fine game and was supported by excellent fielding and hitting. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Legion	11	13	4
Redwood City	10	11	5

Batteries—Kouns and McSweeney; Adams and Provine.

BOY VIOLINIST AND GIRL PIANIST IN RECITAL DANCE

Master F. Claudio, "Boy Wonder" violinist, and his eight-year-old sister, little Mary Claudio, both pupils of their father, Professor E. F. Claudio, will give a recital and dance at Fraternal Hall Saturday evening of this week. The two children (the boy is but 11 years of age) are becoming famous for their mastery of violin and piano. Recently they rendered several selections for a meeting of the Woman's Club at San Mateo, and all who heard them were astonished at the technique displayed. The recital and dance Saturday evening is planned under the patronage of Mrs. W. J. Martin, Mrs. E. C. Peck, Mrs. Mary Di Vita, H. Scampini, and E. Rossetti.

COLMA MAN DIES WHEN KNOCKED FROM ST. CAR

Domenico Luccini Swept From Car Step by Passing Automobile.

"Killed in an accident by an automobile driven by Charles Halling, who was trying to avoid another machine. The jury exonerates the street car crew."

Such was the verdict of the coroner's jury rendered Wednesday morning in the case of Domenico Luccini of Colma, who died at the South San Francisco Hospital from injuries received late last Friday night, when a passing auto driven by Chas. Halling of 315 Elizabeth street, San Francisco, swept him from the step of a street car on the interurban line at Colma.

Carlo Landini of the Armour Hotel and Alcidi Mutti of 514 Miller avenue, both of this city, were injured at the same time, but not seriously.

According to testimony brought out at the inquest, the street car was traveling south on Mission street and was slowing down to allow passengers to get off at School street, Colma, when the accident happened. Charles Halling, driver of the death auto and member of the San Francisco fire department attached to Engine Company 16, stated that with three other members of his engine company he had driven to San Mateo during the evening and was returning to San Francisco shortly before midnight. According to his story he started to pass the car on the right, when suddenly another machine appeared from behind the street car, attempting to pass it on the wrong side.

Halling stated that, seeing a head-on collision between his own car and the machine approaching was imminent, he turned first to the right, then to the left. A number of men, Luccini among them, were riding on the steps of the car on the "blind side." According to Halling, he did not see them in the darkness. His machine knocked several men off the step, Luccini being killed, Landini and Mutti being severely bruised. Halling stated that he stopped and rendered such assistance as he could. In the meantime Luccini had been taken to the South San Francisco Hospital in a car driven by a man from San Jose, whose name was not secured.

Motorman F. O'Neill of 28 Elizabeth street, San Francisco, stated he was slowing down to let passengers off at School street when the accident happened.

Conductor James G. Olson of 305 Linden avenue, San Francisco, testified that the car was heavily loaded, he having stopped at Daly City and, with the assistance of Policeman Barney Hilton of that place, made several men and boys get off the roof and fenders. He declared he did not know Luccini and the others were on the steps of the "blind side."

The auto that caused the accident by attempting to pass the street car on the wrong side disappeared immediately after the accident, and nobody at the inquest knew who was driving it nor what its number was.

Dr. R. S. Irvine of the South San Francisco Hospital testified that Luccini was brought to the hospital at about 1 o'clock in the morning Saturday, and died at 3 o'clock Sunday morning, the cause of death being hemorrhage from internal injuries coupled with the shock.

Luccini was 33 years of age. He was buried Monday afternoon from the Nieri undertaking parlors under the auspices of the Druids, of which he was a member. Benediction was said at All Souls' Church, with burial at the Italian Cemetery.

AMERICAN LEGION TO START DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

(Contributed.)

Bernard McCaffrey Post No. 85, American Legion, is going to start on a drive for new members on July 1st. This membership drive is on all over the United States, and each member is out after a new one.

Any ex-service man who is not a member had better snap out of it and look up one of his buddies and get on the inside of things. Something new going on all the time.

Be at the big dance on July 1st at Fraternal Hall and sign up for membership in the biggest, liveliest, "up-and-at-em" he man's outfit that ever marched down a plank or sailed the seven seas.

SO. S. F. STUDENT SIGNALLY HONORED

Willard Sullivan Given Stanford Degree "With Great Distinction."

Willard Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sullivan of Lux avenue, was signally honored at Stanford University last week when he received his degree of A. B. "with great distinction." The classification of the highest grade students into those receiving their degree "with distinction" and "with great distinction" was made this year for the first time. Willard Sullivan being one of only twenty-one out of the class of 2500 who achieved a scholarship entitling him to his degree "with great distinction." This distinguishes him as a student of most unusual attainments.

Only one other graduate from San Mateo county won a degree "with great distinction," this being Isabel Dorothy Elfving of San Mateo, who won her degree in a course in Romance languages.

Willard Sullivan graduated from the chemistry course. Following the commencement exercises of last week he returned to the university this week to begin a post-graduate course in chemistry research work. During the term to come, young Sullivan has been placed in charge of the store-room of the chemistry department at the university.

RACE FOR JUSTICE PROMISES WARM CONTEST

The race for justice of the peace of the first township promises to be one of the warm political contests of the coming election. There are now five candidates in the field, with two to elect. The first township takes in the entire north end of the county, the southern boundary including three or four blocks of Burlingame.

The candidates include Judge Ellis C. Johnson of Daly City, at present holding the position of justice; J. L. Brown of Daly City, Warren Emerick, L. G. Hardy and Dave Farrell, all of South San Francisco.

Judge Johnson has several years of faithful service in the office to base his campaign for re-election upon. J. L. Brown was formerly editor of the Daly City Record. L. G. Hardy is at present a city trustee in this city and is a very popular man. Warren Emerick has been fifteen years a resident of the township, six years of which has been spent in this city. He is now in the garage business here.

Dave Farrell is an old resident here and is at present employed as an engineer of the local Belt Line railroad. At present it is being rumored that Judge W. J. Smith may decide to run again for the office he is now holding.

MISS GOUZENES BECOMES BRIDE OF S. F. MAN

A wedding that is of especial interest to residents here, took place at Westwood Park, San Francisco, Wednesday at noon, when Miss Rose Gouzenes, for several years chief operator at the local office of the telephone company, became the bride of Charles Mesusan of San Francisco. The wedding took place at the groom's home in Westwood Park, and, after a two weeks' honeymoon trip taken by motor to Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Mesusan will make their home there. Miss Theresa Gouzenes, sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor, while Chester Jones, a friend of the groom, was best man.

The Gouzenes family has lived for many years at Millbrae. Mrs. Mesusan has a wide circle of friends in this city, won during her service in the telephone office by her pleasing personality. It is announced that she will continue in her position here on her return from the south.

GET A THEATER TICKET.

You can get a pass to a San Francisco theater by bringing in one new subscription to The Enterprise for one year or by renewing your own subscription for a year. We have these passes to a number of the city's best play and motion picture houses. You may have your choice. Ask for a theater pass when paying your subscription.

BLACKSMITH KILLED AT FULLER PLANT

Andrew Englund Dies When Gasoline Explosion Hurls Metal Tank Into Air, Striking Him on Head.

Andrew Englund, a blacksmith employed at the W. P. Fuller paint works, was killed Tuesday morning under peculiar circumstances, the accident happening from the explosion of gas accumulated in a metal gasoline tank. Englund was welding a leak in the tank with an acetylene torch when the gas ignited. The force of the explosion hurled the tank or drum into the air, Englund being struck on the head when it fell.

This is, probably, the first time a similar accident has occurred in this city. At the inquest held at the Nieri undertaking parlors Wednesday morning, two employees of the plant, M. Honore and Max Givria, fellow-workmen of Englund, testified that the drum was one of many used to transport gasoline. On the tanks being emptied they are washed out and allowed to dry for a day or two before again being put into use. The drum in question was washed several days before, but it appeared that in being laid out to dry it had been turned so the open bung was on the ground. Apparently a small quantity of gasoline or perhaps some vapor from the fluid had not left the tank. When the lighted acetylene torch was applied the explosion followed. The drum, weighing some 200 or 300 pounds, rose straight into the air and crashed directly down on the man's head.

Dr. F. S. Dolley, superintendent of the South San Francisco Hospital, who was immediately called to the scene, testified that Englund died from a fractured skull. Death was practically instantaneous.

The following served on the coroner's jury which held inquests Wednesday morning, both for Englund and for Domenico Luccini, killed at Colma: J. H. Bean, J. B. Rodondi, Pasquale Santini, V. Boido, Mr. Right, Charles Grant, E. Galli, Joe Kent.

Englund was a native of Sweden and was 50 years of age. He had lived in San Bruno three years. The funeral took place from the Nieri undertaking parlors Wednesday afternoon, with burial at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

NURSE'S REPORT SHOWS CARE OF CHILDREN

A report made by the city nurse, Miss Michaels, recently to the city trustees contains much that should be of interest to every resident of the school district, especially those having children in school. This report shows clearly the care that is being taken of the children, the careful supervision of their health constantly maintained, etc. In the nurse's report, which covers only the month of May, the work done for the children by the local doctors and by Dr. J. C. McGovern, dentist, is noted as follows:

Dr. Dolley	Physical examinations of children	140
Taken to his office	5
Dr. Irvine	Children tested for correctness of vision	356
Dr. McGovern	Extractions	38
	Fillings	9
	Treatments	11
	Prophylaxis	32
	Taken to his office	11
	Letters to parents regarding children's teeth	18

FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION POSTPONED

The big county community fair that was to have been held at the San Carlos speedway on July 4th under the auspices of the Peninsula Bureau of Chambers of Commerce and Civic Associations, has been postponed until Labor Day (September 4th) or until the speedway is rebuilt. This was decided upon at a meeting of the publicity committee in charge of the arrangements Tuesday evening and presided over by Frank K. Towne.

E. N. Brown was in town Monday. "Brownie" is still on crutches as a result of his horse falling on him several weeks ago.

SPEEDWAY WILL BE REBUILT AT ONCE

HUGE TRACK AT SAN CARLOS, PARTLY DESTROYED BY FIRE LAST SUNDAY, TO RISE FROM ASHES, SAYS MORTON.

"The San Carlos speedway will be rebuilt at once." Such is the announcement of Fred Morton, president of the Speedway Association. It is reported that the great bowl cost $225,000 to build and is insured for approximately one-half that amount.

The fire that almost destroyed the speedway was discovered by passing motorists at about noon last Sunday, and the flames raged until nearly 4 o'clock, when they were gotten under control by the assistance of fire fighters from San Francisco. Until about 2:30 the fire departments of Redwood City and San Mateo fought a losing fight against the flames with chemical.

In the meantime a call for help had been sent to Fire Chief Murphy of the San Francisco department and chemical trucks No. 7 and No. 16 from that city and engine No. 38 from the Ocean View station, with a crew of picked men, were dispatched to the scene of the conflagration. The fire fighters arrived at San Carlos about 2:30 o'clock, after a record run down the peninsula. By this time the fire had already devoured more than three-quarters of the grandstand and was slowly eating its way around the south end of the bowl.

Some one directed the attention of the firemen to an "aerator valve" in the Spring Valley water main where the 36-inch pipe crosses a small creek. The aerator valve was raised and the water gushed out and into the creek below, where an improvised lake had been quickly made. Engine No. 38 of the San Francisco fire department was brought into place, two lines of hose were stretched, and in a few minutes the firemen had the flames in the grandstand under control. Shortly after lines were relayed by Redwood City and San Mateo departments to the blaze, which was slowly working around the east stretch of the track, over half a mile away. The fire was brought under control about 3:30 o'clock, after a battle of fully three and one-half hours. The conflagration was witnessed by thousands of Sunday motorists.

Flying embers from the burning grandstand were carried by the strong wind to the adjoining fields, and the firemen and volunteer workmen were kept busy putting out small fires that started in the dry grass.

MANY SEE THRILLING HILL CLIMBING SUNDAY

The hill-climbing event staged by the Golden Gate Motorcycle Club at hill No. 57 last Sunday drew a large crowd of motorcycle fans from all over the bay region, it being estimated that fully 5000 people were present. The hill has a grade of 62 per cent, and only three of the thirty-two entrants in the different events reached the top. These were Finnigan Speer, who made the ascent in 36.2 seconds, the best time made; E. Roylance, who made it in 36.4, and Archie Rife, who went over the top in 44 seconds.

OFFICIALS OF INDUSTRIAL FIRM LOOKING FOR SITE

Officials of a big industrial firm were in South San Francisco Wednesday looking for a site for a plant. They were accompanied by W. J. Martin and J. Harrigan of Harrigan & Wiedmuller, real estate brokers of San Francisco. The visitors expressed themselves as much pleased with this locality.

GRASS FIRE CALLS DEPARTMENT OUT

A small grass fire on the hill near the railroad tunnel north of town called the fire engine out Wednesday about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. It took only a few minutes to put the blaze out, and there was no damage except the burning of a little fencing.

CADERO TO LEAD BAND.

A. J. Cadero, advertising manager of The Enterprise, is to blossom out shortly as a band leader. The band is to be organized among the San Mateo county Scouts, and anybody who can beat a horn or rasp, a bazzon can learn all about it by talking to Cadero.

WRITTEN FOR LAST WEEK'S HIGH SCHOOL EDITION, BUT HELD FOR LACK OF SPACE

BOYS' PHYSICAL EDUCATION.

In its modern application, the term "physical education" includes all the means and agencies which affect the physical well-being of the individual. It includes such factors as nurture, curative methods, hygiene and environment, in addition to the various forms of physical exercise, because they all bear directly on the physical well-being of the child, either for the present or future.

The school is becoming more and more the agent controlling the activities of the school boy, because of the modern development of industrial conditions and because of the increased knowledge of sanitation and hygiene which can best be taught by the schools.

Sound physical education is of fundamental importance because of its direct bearing and influence on all activities of life. It is during the school days that applied physical education will have its greatest effects upon later life. It brings about formation of desirable habits and corrects deficiencies; it develops a desirable attitude in school life; it brings about a co-operation of mental and physical activities, and gives the student a desirable viewpoint of the importance of a sound physical condition.

In the boys' physical education department the work has been almost entirely with various kinds of games. The modern point of view with reference to the value of play (or games) is that it has great value in the social development of the child as well as the physical development. Gymnastics develop physically, but their value in social development is negligible. Not only does play develop physically, but it also develops important social ideals and attitudes, especially in group play. The games or sports which have claimed the largest amount of our time are baseball, basketball, some soccer and football and the various forms of track and field sports. These games call for co-operation of the various group members, develop leaders and create a spirit of great social importance.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT.

The foreign language work of the South San Francisco High School comprises the classical Latin and the modern French and Spanish.

The immediate aim in the study of Latin is to enable the student to read the Latin authors of the course with intelligent appreciation and to gain some comprehension of Roman life.

In the attainment of these ends various other benefits are derived, among which is an insight into the principles and the process of language growth. The light thus thrown upon the derivation and meaning of English words is of important practical value, since our language is about one-half Latin and one-half Anglo-Saxon. This is the vocational side of the study of Latin, and is therefore stressed.

The purpose of the study of modern foreign languages is to give the pupil a command of these languages in speaking, reading, writing; to make him familiar with the land, customs, and people of the language which he is studying; to introduce him to its literature, and to create in the pupil a sympathetic interest in the language studied which will make for profit and pleasure always.

If the modern business or professional man hopes to keep abreast of the times, the study of one or more foreign languages he finds necessary. There is also an increasing demand by business houses for office help, secretaries, salesmen, etc., with this equipment.

Since the Norman conquest, French has been the language of culture the world over, and with it one could make himself understood in all the courts of Europe.

Our proximity to Mexico and the countries of South America, the completion of the Panama Canal, the rapid increase in commercial relations existing between these countries and the United States, makes Spanish useful as a means of communication for business purposes.

Current Spanish and French periodicals are used in the classroom, also games are introduced for enlarging the vocabulary, acquiring foreign idioms, telling the time of day, etc.

EUGENIA L. SHAW.

MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT.

Of all subjects taught in the high school, the courses in mathematics seem to call forth the most discussion. Either the student hates his algebra worse than anything or he likes his geometry best of all his work. The difference in opinion seems to depend upon whether the work is well done or not.

Proficiency in mathematics depends, among other factors, upon the student's ability to spend hours or even days upon an especially difficult part in order to master it; upon his power to pay strict attention to details, to see relations between parts where a connection exists, to arrange work in an orderly manner, and to think clearly of one thing at a time.

To those who have none or only part of these characteristics, mathematics is a bore and a source of drudgery. To those who have them it becomes a pleasure and satisfaction, for it brings a sense of well being to find a hard task has been well done.

During the first part of the year those failing in all branches of mathematics were about 20 per cent of the total, but since their elimination there have been few failures.

Algebra notebooks have been a fine index of the type of student doing the work. The careful, systematic, faithful student had the work in every day. The careless, flighty, hit-or-miss person was always a couple of weeks behind.

Plane geometry classes have done better than the usual groups in that branch, having covered more ground in a way very gratifying to the teacher. The advanced class was able to spend three weeks in co-ordinating and reviewing algebra and geometry, getting a better idea of the relationships between the subjects.

Instead of calling the third year's work solid geometry and trigonometry, it might be better to refer to it as a course in the discovery of what should have been learned in previous years.

On the whole the department was successful in doing the job it set out to do—teach algebra, geometry and trigonometry, together with honesty, diligence and independent thinking.

GIRLS' PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

The physical education department of South San Francisco High School is one about which parents hear most. They often wonder whether or not its work is not taking the entire time of the pupil. Let them be reassured, for each child is given only about thirty minutes a day of physical training. This is in compliance with the state law, which requires each school to make provision for two forty-minute periods a week.

The girls are given a test sent out by the State Physical Education Department. This test measures the physical ability of the girls and gives a means of making a comparison between a perfectly developed girl and one who needs special training. It has been a great pleasure to note the improvement made by a year's training. The girls in our school are in a splendid condition.

One of the branches of physical education is athletics. It holds the interest of nearly every girl. For the purpose of having competition between the girls of the different high schools, the Girls' Peninsula Athletic League has been formed. It is unique in the United States, and has done more for promoting good fellowship and good sportsmanship than one can estimate in figures. We are glad to say that South San Francisco won one championship in 125-pound basketball, took second place in volleyball and fourth place in the first annual field day at San Jose. That we are the smallest school in the league speaks well for the athletes we have developed and their ability and determination to uphold the honor of South San Francisco high.

We allow the girls their choice in the following sports, each of which is personally supervised by the physical director: Basketball, hockey, volleyball, baseball and field sports. In developing these sports we have interclass games, the winners of which are awarded their class numerals, and as many practice games as we can get with outside schools. Seventeen girls wear block letters and stars. These indicate participation in winning games or places in the track meet. After a student has a block letter, he is given a star to indicate his other block awards.

During this year the physical education department has had an exhibition of its work for the parents, as well as furnished the gymnastics for the circus given in December.

We ask the co-operation of the parents in complying with the state law. We can prove your child is better after this work. Help us to make good citizens.

RUE R. CLIFFORD,
Director Physical Education for Girls.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH.

In every walk of life a thorough knowledge of English contributes to social efficiency. Whether one is to sell merchandise, manage a corporation, or even seek employment, the use of good language, logically used, is of prime importance. For leisure time, nothing is more profitable or beneficial than a taste for good literature. A good conversationalist is a decided social asset. A great deal of modern business is done by correspondence; to write well, therefore, is a necessity.

English as a whole, whether it be written, spoken or read, is one of the most, if not the most, valuable subject in the curriculum.

SAN BRUNO LOCALS

Work on our new bank building, corner San Mateo and Sylvan avenues, commenced this week.

City Trustee Edwards is nursing several carbuncles, which accounts for his absence from the board meeting last Wednesday.

The Municipal Improvement Company, grading the streets in Third Addition preparatory to paving them, is fairly "making the dust fly."

Frank Petracosta of Belle Air has bought the former Siehe home in that community, which he expects to greatly improve in the near future.

M. P. Schell, who left San Bruno several years ago for Cleverdale, expects to be back with us again by July 1st, and will occupy his cottage in First Addition.

The St. Clair and the Van Ireland families have both been notified to vacate, the owners wishing to move in. But where to move to is the perplexing problem in each case.

A Mr. Berger of San Francisco is having lumber hauled for his new home in Lomita Park on the state highway opposite Toll's. He complains of some of the lumber walking away over night.

Attorney H. Mason of the law firm of Mason & Locke of San Francisco, the newly appointed city attorney to succeed Attorney John Davis, who resigned, created a very favorable impression at his first session with the board of trustees last Wednesday.

Owing to former residents returning to San Bruno and new people moving in, there is an increasing demand for homes here, which should be an inducement to lot owners and investors alike to get busy at once and build, the demand being far greater than the supply.

It is not wholly improbable that the highway bridges at the Cabin and the M. E. church will be utilized for underground passageways to safeguard life and limb of pedestrians wishing to cross the highway when the traffic is heavy. The engineering department has the feasibility of the project under advisement.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartozzi sold their place on the highway, formerly owned by A. A. Baradat, to J. Willey of San Francisco, who is tidying things up preparatory to opening up a first-class soft drink and light lunch parlor there. That Mr. Willey means business is evidenced by the fact that he has purchased the adjoining lot to provide more parking space for the machines of his guests.

The picnic of the local camp of W. O. W. last Sunday at Sawyer's Camp was a pronounced success in every respect. A tragic ending, however, was averted by a hair's breadth. At a narrow point, homeward bound, one side of the roadway gave way under Lombardi's heavy truck, on which approximately thirty picnickers were riding. A serious disaster seemed unavoidable, but by some miracle the truck was prevented from tipping over.

One should make up his mind early in life, if he would be happy, that all bills he receives will be higher than he expected.

If you don't look forward buoyantly to the future, you're dead to the present.

FALLBROOK CHAMBER IS SHOWING MUCH ENTERPRISE

Fallbrook, Calif.—When the enterprising members of the Fallbrook Chamber of Commerce a short time ago celebrated the completion of the paved highway between Los Angeles and San Diego, they settled down to the task of putting over a water election. It carried by a vote of fourteen to one.

Immediately the Chamber plunged the town into a vigorous clean-up campaign, and it was while this work was in progress that announcement was made that the Santa Fe Railway Company had let the contract for a million-dollar dam at Warner Hot Springs in the mountains east of Fallbrook, in the wake of which came the good news that the wealthy Vail interests had completed arrangements for another enormous irrigation project just north and east of here.

The Chamber of Commerce then demanded and secured a betterment of the local telephone system, at the same time opening a modern free auto camp in the town, and now comes the announcement that the Santa Fe's new line through the Imperial Valley is to connect with its road here.

Now, while casting about for more worlds to conquer, this energetic civic organization has unanimously voted to purchase advertising space in the newspapers of California, outside of Los Angeles, as the best medium for heralding the community's good fortune.

A "self-made" man would never admit that he is responsible for putting the thickness in his skull.

THE POWER OF CO-OPERATION

Within the last month the editor of The Enterprise has had several object lessons in the power of community boosting, community co-operation, to accomplish great results. Some of the results observed are almost beyond belief.

The writer spent a day and a half in Sacramento at the '49ers' celebration that has just passed into history at that city. It was a tremendous success, made so by just one thing—community co-operation. The residents of the state capital got behind the affair to a man. Probably three-fourths of the residents of Sacramento were at work, on the street and attending functions in the costumes of the days of '49. The business houses spent thousands of dollars camouflaging their store fronts to resemble buildings of the early period. Result: for a week an early day atmosphere enveloped the city that was unique and tremendously interesting. A greater result was that echoes of that celebration were heard around the world, and Sacramento received such advertising as is almost without parallel in the state's history.

A few days later the editor made a flying trip to Los Angeles. For many years the southern city has been known as one of the greatest community boosters of any city in the United States. For years it has been constantly, persistently advertising Los Angeles and its environments. For months past it has been reaping the reward. The sound of hammer and saw is heard on every hand. Buildings are going up on every side. The growth of the southern metropolis and its surrounding cities is almost beyond belief. People with money in their pockets have poured in from every state. The same indication of growth and progress is noticeable in many towns between here and Los Angeles. Progress, growth, development is the spirit of the hour.

Down in San Diego county the little town of Fallbrook has stirred itself and big things are being done. In another column of today's Enterprise an advertisement will be found for Fallbrook. That advertisement is being placed in hundreds of newspapers all over the state. Fallbrook is a town barely as large as South San Francisco. A short time ago it was a mere hamlet. Its enterprising spirit is carrying its message to every corner of California. Watch it grow!

Who is doing this advertising for the cities that are growing so fast? The local Chambers of Commerce. The '49 celebration was "put across" by the Sacramento Chamber. The Chamber of Los Angeles has spent millions in advertising. Practically every town in southern California has a live and hustling Chamber. It has now reached the point where practically only those cities with alert Chambers can hope to compete in growth and development.

San Francisco and the entire bay region has practically everything to sell the home or factory seeker that any region in California has. It has fertile soil, an unsurpassed climate, ideal transportation facilities. It has advantages that cannot be equaled anywhere else in the state. Among these are locations on the world's greatest harbor with shipping possibilities by water, steam, electricity, or highway at the door; a climate that makes for highest efficiency the year around; educational facilities, because of its nearness to two of the world's greatest universities, that no other region in the state can boast.

What we need beyond all else is greater community co-operation. With-out such co-operation a Chamber of Commerce can do little.

There are several great development projects now in prospect for the peninsula that hold tremendous potentialities for the future if we "put them over." The eastside highway, the transbay bridge, a free port, rapid rail transportation south from San Francisco. All these things mean for tomorrow the building of an empire teeming with life and activity where today there is but a scattered population and only the beginning of development. In the south towns have sprung into existence almost over night, other towns have doubled and tripled in size within an incredibly short time. Greater miracle still will come to pass here if we are alive to our opportunities.

Almost at our door Pacific City, a new summer resort, is fast taking shape. It is a good indication.

In spite of the fire that nearly wiped out the San Carlos speedway the Peninsula Bureau of Chambers of Commerce has announced it will go ahead with its preparations for a great Fourth of July celebration. The object of this affair is to raise money for exploiting the peninsula district wherever such exploitation may have the best effect. Fine! Let's all help. Let's boost that advertising fund till every nook and corner of the United States knows of the San Francisco peninsula, its fertile soil, its wonderful climate, its unsurpassed harbor, shipping and manufacturing possibilities.

A government "free port" located at South San Francisco has been proposed. Bully! Let's go after it! Another Hamburg or Liverpool will spring into being here if we show the right spirit. The possibilities are here. The power to develop them is here. What we need is more punch, more push, more pep!

Note: As The Enterprise went to press, word was received from R. H. K. Smith, secretary of the Peninsula Bureau, that it had been decided to postpone the Fourth of July celebration because of the burning of the San Carlos speedway where it was to be held. This is a temporary setback to the raising of the advertising fund mentioned, but should not be allowed to dampen our enthusiasm for boosting for the peninsula and all that it has to offer. The greater the obstacles the greater our boosting, should be adopted as a working motto. A program will be given at Pacific City on the Fourth. Let's help it along all we can.

People who are stingy with thanks seldom have an opportunity to extend them.

The matrimonial market, at least, can go up without raising a storm.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Captain Phineas P. Scraggs has grown up around the docks of San Francisco, and from a mere boy on a river steamer, risen to the ownership of the steamer Maggie. Since each annual inspection promised to be the last of the old weatherbeaten vessel, Scraggs naturally has some difficulty in securing a crew. When the story opens, Adelbert P. Gibney, likable but erratic, a man whom nobody but Scraggs would hire, is the skipper. Nella Halvorsen, a solemn Swede, constitutes the fo'castle hands, and Bart McGuffey, a wastrel of the Gibney type, reigns in the engine room.

CHAPTER II.—With this motley crew and his ancient vessel, Captain Scraggs is engaged in freighting garden truck from Halfmoon bay to San Francisco. The inevitable happens, the Maggie going ashore in a fog.

CHAPTER III.—A passing vessel hailing the wreck, Mr. Gibney gets word to a towing company in San Francisco that the ship ashore is the Yankee Prince, with promise of a rich salvage. Two tugs succeed in pulling the Maggie into deep water, and she slips her tow lines and gets away in the fog.

CHAPTER IV.—Furious at the deception practiced on them, Captains Hicks and Fishery, commanding the two tugboats, ascertain the identity of the "Yankee Prince" and, fearing ridicule should the facts become known along the water front, determine on personal vengeance. Their hostile visit to the Maggie results in Captain Scraggs promising to get a new boiler and make needed repairs to the steamer.

CHAPTER V.—Scraggs refuses to fulfill his promise and Gibney and McGuffey "strike." With marvelous luck, Scraggs ships a fresh crew. At the end of a few days of wild conviviality Gibney and McGuffey are stranded on a desert island, their old positions on the Maggie. They are hostilely received, but remain. On their way to San Francisco they sight a derelict and Gibney and McGuffey swim to it.

CHAPTER VI.—The derelict proves to be the Chesapeake, richly laden. Its crew stricken with scurvy, Scraggs attempts to tow her in, but the Maggie is unequal to the task and Gibney and McGuffey, alone, sail the ship to San Francisco, their salvage money amounting to $1,000 apiece.

CHAPTER VII.—Independently rich, our two adventurers still have a kindly feeling for the Maggie, and, his crew having deserted him, Captain Scraggs induces them to return. A "old horse" sale the three purchase two mysterious boxes which they believe to contain smuggled "Oriental" goods. They find, instead, two dead Chinamen.

CHAPTER VIII.—Scraggs seeks to "double cross" his two associates, but Mr. Gibney outwits him and makes a satisfactory financial settlement with the Chinese company to whom the bodies have been consigned, leaving Scraggs out in the cold.

CHAPTER IX.—Gibney resents McGuffey's action in lending money to Scraggs without consulting him, and after a terrific wordy combat the three separate. McGuffey becomes an assistant engineer on an oil tanker, Gibney disappearing, and Scraggs, forced to lay up the Maggie, takes a subordinate position on a ferry steamer. Senior Lopez, Mexican revolutionist, makes Scraggs a generous offer for transportation of munitions to Lower California. Scraggs accepts, and the old Maggie is once more put into commission. Arriving at his destination, Scraggs finds his old companion, Mr. Gibney, at the consignment. Time having softened animosities, the reunion is joyful. Gibney plans to steal the ammunition and convey it to revolutionists in Colombia. On their way they are attacked by a Mexican gunboat, which they capture, though the Maggie is damaged so that it has to be destroyed. On the gunboat, to which they transfer, they find their old friend McGuffey acting as engineer.

CHAPTER X.—Going ashore with supposedly friendly natives, Gibney and Scraggs are taken prisoners, to be held for a cannibal feast.

CHAPTER XI.—McGuffey, believing his friends to have been killed, shells the island. Gibney and Scraggs escape, and reach the ship with two prisoners, the king of the land and his "prime minister." Utilizing the blacks as divers, the "syndicate" collects a valuable cargo of black coral and sails for home. With the double idea of punishing the cannibals for their treachery and having some fun with Scraggs, who is not fond of a fight, Gibney and McGuffey arrange a fictitious combat with the prisoners. Gibney to fight one and Scraggs the other. The five land on a desert island, and while they are engaged in the fictitious fight the steamer sails, leaving the five marooned.

"I move you, members of the syndicate, that the schooner Maggie II proceed to some barren, uninhabited island, and that upon arrival there this savage king and his still more savage subject be taken ashore in a small boat. I also move you, gentlemen of the syndicate, that inasmuch as the two aggrieved parties, A. P. Gibney and P. Scraggs, having in a spirit of mercy refrained from laying their hands on said prisoners for fear of invaliding them at a time when their services was of importance to the expedition, be given an opportunity to take out their grudge on the persons of said savages. Now, I notice that the king is a miserable, skimp, sawed-off and hammered-down old rascal. By all the rules of the prize ring he's in Scraggs's class." (Here Mr. McGuffey flashed a lightning wink to the commodore. "It was an appeal for Mr. Gibney's moral support in the engineer's scheme to put up a job on Captain Scraggs, and thus relieve the tedium of the homeward trip. Mr. Gibney instantly telegraphed his approbation, and McGuffey continued.)

"I notice also that if I was to hunt the universe over, I couldn't find a better match for Gib than Tabu-Tabu. And as we are all agreed that the white race is superior to any race on earth, and it'll do us all good to see a fine mill before we leave the country, I move you, gentlemen of the syndicate, that we pull off a finish fight between Scraggs and the king, and Gib and Tabu-Tabu. I'll referee both contests and at the conclusion of the mixup we'll leave these two murderers marooned on the island and then—"

"Rats," snapped Captain Scraggs. "That ain't no business at all. You shouldn't consider nothin' short of capital punishment. Why, that's only a petty larceny form of—"

"Quit buttin' in on my prerogatives," roared McGuffey. "That ain't the finish by no means."

"What is the finish, then?"

"Why, these two cannibals, bein' left alone on the desert island, naturally bumps up agin the old question of the survival of the fittest. They get scrappin' among themselves, and one eats the other up."

"By the toe-nails of Moses," muttered Mr. Gibney in genuine admiration, "but you have got an imagination after all, Mac. The point is well taken and the program will go through as outlined. Scraggs, you'll fight the king. No buckin' and grumblin'. You'll fight the king. You're outvoted two to one, the thing's been done regular, and you can't kick. I'll fight Tabu-Tabu, so you see you're not gettin' any the worst of it. We'll proceed to an island in the Friendly group called Tuvana-tholo. It lies right in our homeward course, and there ain't enough grub on the confounded island to last two men a week. And I know there ain't no water there. So, now that that matter is all settled, we will proceed to heave the anchor and scoot for home. Mac, tune up your engines and we'll get out of here a-whoopin' and a-flyin'."

It was an eight-hundred-mile run up to Tuvana-tholo, but the weather held good and the trade-winds never slackened. Ten days from the date of leaving Kandavu they hove to off the island. It was a long, low, sandy atoll, with a few coconut-palms growing in the center of it, and with the exception of a vast colony of seabirds that apparently made it their headquarters, the island was devoid of life.

The bloodthirsty McGuffey stood at the break of the poop, and as he gazed shoreward he chuckled and rubbed his hands together.

"Great, great," he murmured. "I couldn't have gotten a better island if I'd had one built to order." He called aft to the navigating officer: "Scraggs, there's the ring. Nothin' else to do now but get the contestants into it. Along in the late afternoon, when the heat of the day is over, we'll go ashore and pull off the fight. And, by George, Scraggs, if that old king succeeds in lambastin' you, I'll set the rascal free."

Seeing that there was no escape, Captain Scraggs decided to bluff the matter through. "Let's go ashore and have it over with," he said carelessly. "I'm a man of peace, but when there's fightin' to be done, I say go to it and no tomfoolery."

"Clear away the big whaleboat with two men to pull us ashore," said Mr. Gibney to the mate. Five minutes later the members of the syndicate, accompanied by the captives, climbed into the whaleboat and shoved off, leaving the Maggie II in charge of the mate. "We'll be back in half an hour," called the commodore, as they rowed away from the schooner. "Just ratch back and forth and keep heavin' the lead."

They negotiated the fringe of breakers to the north of the island successfully, pulled the boat up on the beach, and proceeded at once to business. Mr. Gibney explained to Tabu-Tabu what was expected of him, and Tabu-Tabu in turn explained to the king. It was not the habit of white men, so Mr. Gibney explained, to kill their prisoners in cold blood, and he had decided to give them an opportunity to fight their way out of a sad predicament with their naked fists. If they won, they would be taken back aboard the schooner and later dropped at some inhabited island. If they lost, they must make their home for the future on Tuvana-tholo.

"Let 'er go," called McGuffey, and Mr. Gibney squared off and made a bearlike pass at Tabu-Tabu. To the amazement of all present Tabu-Tabu sprang lightly backward and avoided the blow. His footwork was excellent and McGuffey remarked as much to Captain Scraggs. But when Tabu-Tabu put up his hands after the most approved method of self-defense and dropped into a "crouch," McGuffey could no longer contain himself.

"The beggar can fight, the beggar can fight," he croaked, wild with joy. "Scraggs, old man, this'll be a rare mill, I promise you. He's been aboard a British man-o'-war and learned how to box. Steady, Gib. Upper-cut him, upper—wow!"

ment on his sturdy legs, stepped back out of range, dropped both hands, and stared at Tabu-Tabu.

"I do believe the nigger'll lick you, Gib," said McGuffey anxiously. "He's got a horrible reach and a mule kick in each mt. Close with him, or he's due for a full pardon."

"In a minute," said the commodore faintly. "He's so good I hate to hurt him. But I'll inflict him to a finish."

Which Mr. Gibney forthwith proceeded to do. He rushed his opponent and clinched, though not until his right eye was in mourning and a stiff jolt in the short ribs had caused him to grunt in most ignoble fashion. But few men could withstand Mr. Gibney once he got to close quarters. Tabu-Tabu wrapped his long arms around the commodore and endeavored to smother his blows, but Mr. Gibney would not be denied. His great fist shot upward from the hip and connected with the cannibal's chin. Tabu-Tabu relaxed his hold, Mr. Gibney followed with left and right to the head in quick succession, and McGuffey was counting the fatal ten over the fallen warrior.

Mr. Gibney grinned rather foolishly, spat, and spoke to McGuffey, soto voce: "By George, the joke ain't all on Scraggs," he said. Then turning to Captain Scraggs: "Help yourself to the mustard, Scraggs, old tarpot."

Captain Scraggs took off his hat, rolled up his sleeves, and made a dive for the royal presence. His majesty.

Rocked a Moment on His Sturdy Legs.

lacking the scientific training of his prime minister, seized a handful of the Scraggs mane and tore at it cruelly. A well-directed kick in the shins, however, caused him to let go, and a moment later he was flying up the beach with the angry Scraggs in full cry after him. McGuffey headed the king off and rounded him up so Scraggs could get at him, and the latter at once "dug in" like a terrier. After five minutes of mauling and tearing Captain Scraggs was out of breath, so he let go and stood off a few feet to size up the situation. The wicked McGuffey was laughing immoderately, but to Scraggs it was no laughing matter. The fact of the matter was the king was dangerous and Scraggs had glutted himself with revenge.

"I don't want to beat an old man to death," he gasped finally. "I'll let the scoundrel go. He's had enough and he won't fight. Let's mosey along back to the schooner and leave them here to amuse themselves the best way they know how."

"Right-O," said Mr. Gibney, and turned to walk down the beach to the boat. A second later a hoarse scream of rage and terror broke from his lips. "What's up?" cried McGuffey, the laughter dying out of his voice, for there was a hint of death in Mr. Gibney's cry.

"Marooned!" said the commodore hoarsely. "Those two sailors have pulled back to the schooner, and—there—look, Mac! My Gawd!"

McGuffey looked, and his face went whiter than the foaming breakers beyond which he could see Maggie II, under full sail, headed for the open sea. The small boat had been picked up, and there was no doubt that at her present rate of speed the schooner would be hull down on the horizon by sunset.

"The murderin' hound," whispered McGuffey, and sagged down on the sands. "Oh, the murderin' hound of a mate!"

"It's—It's mutiny," gulped Captain Scraggs in a hard, strained voice. "That bloody bend of a mate! The sly sneak-thief, with his pleasant smile and his winnin' ways! Saw a chance to steal the Maggie and her rich cargo, and he is leavin' us here, marooned on a desert island, with two cannibals."

Captain Scraggs fairly shrieked the last two words and burst into tears. "Lord, Gib, old man," he raved, "what'll we do?"

Thus appealed to, the doughty commodore permitted his two unmatched option to rest mournfully upon his shipmates. He gulped and thoughtfully rubbed the knuckles of his right hand where the skin was barked off. He thought of the silly joke he and McGuffey had thought to perpetrate on Captain Scraggs by leading him up against a beating at the hands of a cannibal king, and with the thought came a grim, hard chuckle, though there was the look of a thousand devils in his eyes.

"Well, Mac, old sporty boy, I guess there ain't much to do except to make up our minds to die like gentlemen. If I was ever fooled by a man in my life, I was fooled by that doggone mate. I thought he'd tote square with the syndicate. I sure did."

For a long time McGuffey gazed seaward. He was slower than his shipmates in making up his mind that the mate had really deserted them and sailed away with the fortunes of the syndicate. Of the three, however, the stoical engineer accepted the situation with the best grace. He spurned the white sand with his foot and faced Mr. Gibney and Captain Scraggs with just the suspicion of a grin on his homely face.

"I make a motion," he said, "that the syndicate pass a resolution condemnin' the action of the mate."

It was a forlorn hope, and the jest went over the heads of the deck department. Said Mr. Gibney sadly:

"There ain't no more Maggie II syndicate."

CALIFORNIA JOE'S JOKE ON THE SOLDIER BOYS

California Joe was a man of mystery. His real name is unknown, some saying it was Joseph Milner, and others asserting it was Hawkins. Whatever it may have been made little difference in his fame, for his title of California Joe was known from Canada to Mexico, and from the Missouri river to the Pacific coast. One of the traits of this quaint old scout was his fondness for a practical joke, and many a long day's march in the Indian campaigns was made lighter for the officers he served by one of his pranks.

One time during the Sioux war of 1876, while he was scouting for Col. Anson Mills, he discovered an old grave along the trail. Joe stopped, took off his hat and bowed his head reverently. The soldiers immediately did the same and asked him the reason for his act.

"This here is the grave of poor Amos Billings," said Joe. "He was with me back in 1838 when we dug gold in the Black Hills. We got so much that we had all our pockets full, and even our mules wuz loaded to th' las' pound. One night we camped right on this spot, and the night poor Amos took the cramps. Lord! how he did suffer is awful for me to think on now. We done all we could but the poor feller died that night."

"We all had all th' gold we could carry, so we jest buried Billings' dust with him, includin' what his mule wuz carryin', fer we didn't think we had any right to take it. Poor Amos Billings! Here's one more tear to moisten your grave."

That night the soldiers took spades and rushed to "poor Amos Billings' grave. They dug and dug. After going down 10 feet they found some old bones but no gold. "Poor Amos Billings" never existed except in the imagination of California Joe, and when the tired soldiers came straggling into camp, his only comment was: "What fernal fools these fellows be!"

He next became a trapper and worked for Old Jim Bridger until 1851, when he went to Oregon on a hunting expedition. At the outbreak of the Civil war he joined the Union army as a scout and was one of Berdan's sharpshooters in Virginia. He drifted West again and became the favorite scout of General Custer who made him chief of scouts in the Washita campaign in 1867.

After scouting for Crook in the campaign of 1876, Joe became a miner in the Black Hills and was killed there by an unknown assassin December 5, 1876.

It is now time for dad to perch himself on the back fence and watch mother plant the garden.

Honors Memory of Edith Cavell

After King George and Queen Mary of England had left the grave of the murdered nurse, Edith Cavell in Brussels last week, there remained at the foot of the memorial erected to the immortal memory of the great martyr, shot to death by the Germans, Mlle. Marguerite Blauckaert, who was sentenced to death with the British nurse, but whose sentence was commuted. Mlle. Blauckaert is photographed as she is placing her silent tribute on the grave of her friend.

HIGH SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

Great enthusiasm was displayed among the students when a "Retail Selling" course was introduced this year. Many students realize the practical value of such a course in the commercial world, where a great majority of the students have to take up the battle of life.

The study of English literature, which is indeed a very important part of the English course, aims to develop within the student an appreciation and preference for the best in our literature. The student who learns to enjoy good books is soon able to distinguish the true values from the artificial. It is through the study of good literature that the boy and girl learns to understand and to appreciate the best in people and life.

Many of the Shakespearean students took advantage of Robert Mantell's splendid interpretations of Shakespeare's plays. A study of these great English plays, which have never been surpassed, helps to create an enthusiasm and appreciation among students for the best on the stage.

THE DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE.

The department of science has its rooms and laboratories on the second floor of the high school building. There is a fully equipped chemistry laboratory, physics laboratory, biology laboratory, a dark room and a modern lecture room.

The purposes of the various science courses are broad and liberal. As a whole, they aim to arouse the interest of the student in the physical and natural world around him and to awaken in him the powers of observation which enable him to more fully understand his environment. They develop the scientific method of thought, investigation and observation of the laws of life and nature. They furnish much information useful in daily life, no matter what one's vocation. Often also the science courses aid in helping a student find his vocation by opening to him the possibilities in the various branches of science.

In planning the work of the science department it is our purpose to so arrange the work that it will be of the highest practical and vocational value, while at the same time we satisfy the demands of college and university entrance requirements. The majority of high school students never enter college, therefore we want the science department to give as much training as possible which is useful in every-day life.

The following courses are offered in the science department: Physics, chemistry, biology and general science for the high school students, and elementary electricity and mechanics for the junior high school boys. The last-named course was taught this year for the first time. It has proven to be a most interesting and useful subject to the boys and gives them some knowledge of a field which is of direct practical value. They learn how to wind and build small motors, how to hook up batteries, doorbells, electric lights, etc. They learn the principles of telegraph, telephone and the radio. By means of laboratory experiments they get some knowledge of the actual working parts of various electrical instruments. In general science and biology the study of physiology and hygiene form an important part, and problems of ventilation and sanitation are studied in their relation to wholesome living. The fundamentals of physical geography, electricity, sound, light and mechanics are also given in their practical aspects in the course of general science.

Physics and chemistry, which are intended for the upper classmen, give a greater degree of technical training, but by means of project experiments they are made of direct practical value. They give the fundamentals of physical and chemical laws applied to every-day life.

We have been fortunate in getting some very necessary equipment this year. For the science lecture room we obtained a fine new stereopticon lantern which enables us to give "visual" instruction. Work has been started on the construction of a radio receiving apparatus. This work is being done largely by boys in the department, so that they will understand the actual construction of such a set. Next year we hope to improve the science department, for improvement is progress.

HARVEY J. HOLT.

Dad (reading son's expense account)—Tuxedo, $75. H'm, that's altogether too much to spend for tobacco.

DRAWING.

The training in drawing is primarily for the development of class observation, the appreciation of beauty in form, proportion, texture and color, and secondarily, for the acquiring of technical skill.

Two years is the requirement for freehand drawing, matriculation subject 16. We begin with the simplest geometric forms, such as cubes, prisms, plinths and pyramids with straight edges and plane surfaces, circles and solids with curved edges and curved surfaces. Models of plaster of Paris or of wood painted white. Shading indicates the third dimension. Outlines disappear as planes or surfaces are represented. Variety of forms are used, such as bottles, jars, and baskets; then fruits, vegetables, and general still-life.

The requirement for mechanical drawing 17 is one year, or until twenty-five plates have been completed.

Following these courses is one given in color theory and applied design. Enameling of trays, flowerpots and baskets, with original patterns and printing of textiles with wood blocks. The aim is to teach appreciation of beautiful forms, knowledge and application of refined color.

For those who elect it a thorough course in pen and ink is available.

During the school year students are taken to San Francisco in order to see exhibits and visit art galleries.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE AND ART.

We haven't had an opportunity to show what can be done in the domestic science and art classes, as we have only been working since January.

This year we have had no high school domestic science course and have had to call upon the capable girls in school to help whenever necessary. They have made candy for various sales and served luncheon to the boys and men members of the faculty while they were working on the school grounds. Next year we hope to have the high school girls sign up for cooking. It is advisable for the upper class girls to take cooking and the girls in the freshmen and sophomore classes to take sewing.

In January twenty-three girls registered for sewing, and, although most of them knew nothing at all about making clothes, we were able to have a modest fashion show in which the girls wore the dresses made in school. Some of the girls more skilled with the needle made hats, which they also wore. If the girls continue to work as hard in the future as they have in the past few months it won't be long before they will be able to make all their own clothes.

JEAN HARBER.

THE GIRLS' GYM JINKS.

The gym jinks, which is enthusiastically attended by the high school girls, took place Thursday evening, January 12, 1922. The jinks began with a basket-ball game between the low freshmen and a team made up of juniors, seniors and the faculty.

Later the gym floor was used as a dining room, where every one enjoyed supper. When the kitchen had been cleaned we all went to the auditorium, where the stunts were given.

Those who featured on the program were Janet Jones, who recited a poem entitled "The Undershirt"; Madam Icy Glare, a gypsy fortune teller and crystal gazer (some of the most prominent students were impersonated and their fortunes told).

The sophomores gave an illustration of a movie studio. Dancing concluded the program.
